PREFACE

This volume of the Clifton Parish register covers the period 1538 to 1681. Unfortunately the years 1541, 1542 and from 1641-1669 inclusive are missing as are also parts of 1638, 1639, 1640, 1670 and 1680. The years 1682-1721 are also missing. Although this register is incomplete, the Bishop's Transcripts for 1695, 1710 and 1718 have survived. Those for 1695 are included in this volume.

I transcribed this register during evening classes at the Bristol Record Office arranged by the University of Bristol Department of Extra Mural Studies. The next volume covers the period between 1722 to 1763 and it is hoped that this and further volumes will eventually be transcribed and printed.

I am most grateful to Professor Patrick McGrath and to Miss Mary Williams and others members of the staff of the Bristol Record Office for their patience in helping me to read some of the badly damaged parchment. I am also grateful to Miss Elizabeth Ralph for her most helpful advice.

After this work was finished, a previous transcription of this register by Arthur B. Prowse M.D. came to light. It is not dated but it is thought that he probably worked on it towards the end of the 19th century. This was before the manuscript was damaged by fire (see p.v). Many of the letters and words which could not be read in the 1980s can therefore be included in the present transcription.

Dr Prowse's transcription can be seen in the Bristol Record Office ref. 29174(1). He noted changes in handwriting which, owing to the present condition of the manuscript, are difficult to see. Part of the first page which gives details of the Clifton Bounds, is now completely illegible. Dr Prowse also attached a printed report dated 1895, which gives details of the Metes and Bounds of Clifton. A summary of numbers of entries for each year, compiled by Dr Prowse, is given in Appendix B in this volume.
A short biography of Dr A.B. Prowse is included on p.xii.

THE PARISH OF CLIFTON.

Clifton lies on the northern and Gloucestershire side of the River Avon. It is now a suburb of Bristol but at the time that these church registers began in 1538 it was a small village about one mile from the city, and covering an area of about two square miles.

Not a great deal is known of the early history of Clifton. An Iron Age fort is situated near the rocks overlooking the River Avon and there is an Iron Age or Romano-British field system to be seen on the downland just north-west of the present Clifton Zoological Gardens. There is no archaeological evidence of Roman occupation although the occasional coin has been found in the parish.

The Domesday Book mentions that a small part of the Parish of Clifton belonged to the Manor of Westbury in the reign of Edward the Confessor. It was severed from the Manor in the reign of William I and given to the Abbey of Cormeile in Normandy. Robert Atkyns writing in 1712 (1) said that this land, as an alien Priory, was vested in the Crown during the reign of Henry V and at the dissolution was granted to Sir Ralph Sadler. It was this part of Clifton, known as Clifton St Lawrence, which the Society of Merchant Venturers finally purchased in 1686 to add to other parts of Clifton which they had purchased during the previous ten years.

The Manor House was near the church and the following minute is believed to refer to the mansion: "Ordered September 17th 1700 that on payment of a fine of £49 a lease of five lives be granted to Whitchurch Phippen of the site or ruins of the Great House of Clifton heretofore burnt down and since called the Old Castle, late in the holding of Mary Hodges" (2).

John Moore (3) has described and examined the history of Clifton after 1600. He estimates the population of Clifton as 80 in 1608, 320 by 1672 and by 1770 as 1,365. He gives evidence of lime-burning and glass-making in the parish and concludes that until shortly before 1750 most buildings in Clifton were farmhouses and craftsmen's or labourers' cottages. The transcription of the 1538-1681 Parish Register which follows also shows that some mining of tin and lead continued in the parish; an entry in 1574 describes the death of two miners in 1574. References in the registers to merchants and sailors are a reminder of Clifton's close association with the city of Bristol and its port.

ST ANDREW'S PARISH CHURCH.

There is no mention of a church in Clifton in the Domesday Book but A.J.Green-Armytage states that in 1154 the advowson of St Andrew is said to have been given by William of Clifton to the Abbey of St Augustine in Bristol and that the first church was served by the monks of that abbey. Little is known about this church but Mrs Green-Armytage reproduces an undated print of the second church, which shows a small building, at the west end of which is a short square tower with four pinnacles and with a lantern in the centre. In 1654 this church was partially rebuilt and in 1716 an aisle was added. In 1769 the lantern and pinnacles on the tower were removed, the tower was heightened and new pinnacles added. In 1768 a south aisle was built. In spite of all these alterations this church was completely demolished a few months after a new church had been built slightly to the north in 1822. A privet hedge now marks the outline of the old church which, according to Mrs Green-Armytage, "was literally carried away in carts and buried in the quarry adjoining the last house in Harley Place. This quarry was afterwards purchased by the late Mr Toplis, and is now part of the garden belonging to that house." (1)

Joseph Leech visited Clifton Parish Church in September 1843 and some of his observations make interesting reading - "Clifton Church though a parish church, and a church capable of accommodating a large number, is not to any extent the church of the parishioners, the rich and the non-resident occupy the reserved seats and those few that are nominally free are filled by servants ... it is not a church of the poor man; he has no business there in that atmosphere of eau de cologne and bouquet de la Reine ... the poor ought not to be kept out of their own parish church - from the pews by the rich and from the free seats by their powdered footmen." (2)

This description of the church is reflected in the churchyard. The graves of the poor, as elsewhere, go unrecorded, but Clifton has many grand and elaborate gravestones erected during the first half of the nineteenth century. On reading these inscriptions an interesting picture emerges of the life in Clifton at that time, of the tradesmen, the merchants and the gentry and of the visitors who came from all parts of this country and from Ireland and America.

In 1940 Clifton Parish Church was destroyed by enemy action and it is fortunate that although they were damaged the registers and other documents were saved.

THE CLIFTON PARISH REGISTERS.

The registers start in 1538 and they are one of only four parish registers in Bristol which begin at this early date, St Ewen, Christchurch and St Nicholas being the other three. They run from 1538 to 1940 for the Burials and to 1951 for the Marriages and Baptisms. The following years are completely missing, 1541, 1542, 1641-1669 and 1682-1721. In addition marriages are missing for 1638, baptisms and burials for 1639 and 1640 and burials for 1670 and 1680. The early registers 1538-1763 are in two volumes having been bound by the Public Record Office after they were damaged in 1940. The pages are parchment and measure approximately 17 cm. by 28 cm.

Registers of baptisms, marriages and burials began in most parishes in 1538 in obedience to Thomas Cromwell´s Injunctions of 5 September 1538 and were generally kept at first on paper. Eventually on 25 October 1597 an ecclesiastical order (which received the approval of Elizabeth I in 1598) was issued that every parish should purchase a parchment register and copy into it all the names in the previous registers. This register, which is paginated, was written in 1616 and all the handwriting is in the same hand.

Bound in with the 1538-1681 register is a note explaining that "this copy" of the register had been found among old papers and books by Joseph Skelton of Oxford. He returned them to Clifton in 1828.

Some of the pages are extremely difficult to read and some cannot be read at all as they were damaged by fire during the air raids on Bristol in 1940. The covers of some of the later volumes are blackened and charred for this reason. All the registers were deposited in the Bristol Record Office in 1951. There are some Bishop´s Transcripts of the registers. These cover the years 1695, 1710, 1718, 1725-6, 1728, 1731, 1746-9, 1751, 1756, 1759-60, 1773-80, 1782-84, 1786-93, 1795-6, 1798-1862, 1865 and 1868. These are also in the Bristol Record Office.

Marriage Licences - The first marriage by licence recorded in the registers is in 1616. Only one parish is mentioned under the marriages in the earlier part of the register when Ellis Deacon of Marshfield was married. After 1672 many more parishes are given and where they have been omitted they can often be found in the Marriage Licence Bonds (1) which start in 1637. Because of the missing pages in the Clifton registers comparisons cannot be made until 1675. One very interesting fact emerges from these details. Many of the couples married in Clifton did not reside in the parish. To give some examples, in 1672/3 both of the partners in certain marriages came from Bedminster, St Augustine´s, St Ewen´s and St Nicholas and in other marriages, parties came from Olveston and Elberton, Olveston and Thornbury and Monmouth and St Philip´s. In 1672/3, out of twelve marriages, over half the parties lived outside Clifton.

(1) see Appendix A.

In 1673/4 out of nine marriages one couple lived in Westbury, one in St Stephen´s and one in All Saints.
A few occupations are given in the register. The following are the only ones mentioned:-

1 Apprentice
1 Captain
1 Chimney sweep
9 Churchwardens
1 Fiddler
4 Glassmakers
1 Hooper
2 Husbandmen
1 Knight
1 Merchant
2 Miners
1 Parchmentmaker
5 Parsons
1 Saddler
4 Sailors or Mariners
20 Servants
1 Surgeon
2 Tailors
1 Weaver

The weaver is entered in 1540, the miners in 1574, the merchant in 1575 and the hooper in 1576. The two tailors were entered in 1608 and 1636, the saddler in 1610, the parchment maker in 1618 and the two husbandmen in 1632 and 1633. The four sailors are entered in 1597, 1613, 1620 and 1675 and the glasshouse workers between 1673 and 1676. Thomas Pynnell was apprentice to Meredith Williams in 1620, George Morgan the fiddler christened a son in 1671 and buried a daughter in 1678 The chimney-sweep was mentiond in 1678 and Mr Smith the chirurgeon in 1671.

After 1661 the Bristol Marriage Licence Bonds increase our knowledge of the occupations in Clifton. The following are mentioned between 1661 and 1700:-

2 Carpenters
1 Cordwainer
1 Farmer
1 Glover
4 Limeburners
1 Millwright
1 Minister
11 Sailors, Mariners or Seamen
1 Servingman
1 Ship´s Carpenter
1 Shipwright
1 Surgeon
4 Tailors
1 Winecooper
7 Yeomen

The large number of sailors entered together with the ship´s carpenter and the shipwright indicate Clifton´s association with the sea. Many gentlemen are mentioned in the registers and the bonds. Some were the masters of the twenty servants who were either married or buried in Clifton between 1538 and 1681. Some of the servants must have been farm labourers as the term "labourer" is not used.

There is no mention of a minister to the parish until 1629 when John Powell is described as "Curat ibm." and in 1632, 1633 and 1634 as "Minister." The next mentioned is Edmund Tracy who was "Clerke" when married by licence in 1636 and "Minister" in 1637. Perhaps it was he who wrote out the burials in Latin. Robert Williamson was the minister in 1672. Ruth daughter of Edward Parker, clerk was baptised in 1680 and John Rous, clerk was married in 1699.

In the accompanying chart the number of baptisms, marriages and burials show a small population. A slow growth can be seen after 1600. After the gaps in the register between 1638 and 1669 an acceleration in the population growth can be seen in the register although this is not included in the chart. This acceleration continued into the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries with the rise in the popularity of Clifton and the Hotwells as a spa and the movement of the richer merchants from the city to the more pleasant surroundings of Clifton.

The chart raises several questions. Were the registers always meticulously kept? Why were there no marriages recorded until 1547 while the baptism and burial rates were the same as in the following years when marriages were recorded? No burials are entered for the years 1544, 1550, 1552 and 1560 but the number of baptisms stayed fairly constant during those years. What happened to the infant mortality which was known to be high? It is perhaps understandable that there were no burials for four years after the severe plague of 1565 but all the same the absence of infant deaths raises a question. Eleven babies had been baptised during the same period and one would have expected that some would have died.

No ages are given throughout the register and we read of only four accidental deaths during that time, in 1574, 1580 and 1624.

It is surprising that only five bastard children are mentioned. These do not include Thomasine Ragland, whose baptism is recorded as "Thomasone daughter to Thomas Ragland." The words "and of Thomas Ragland" were added, probably after her parents married three months later. When the child died of the plague in 1603 people had not forgotten the circumstances of her birth as she is entered as the daughter of Judith Ragland although her father, Thomas, was still alive. Judith's family may have been of some importance in the village because in her marriage entry her father, Lawrence Still, is mentioned. This seems to have been done only with families that had some standing in the parish.

It is also surprising that only eleven strangers are entered during the long period covered by the register. One was "a poor man, no man knewe whence he came nor whether he woulde, died upon the heighway and was buried in Clifton 2nd day of September 1619."

The first mention of a stillbirth was when "Richard Evans being dead borne" was buried in 1614; five others followed in the succeeding years. One other entry is of interest although the parchment is badly damaged "Burials [1636] February... Edward Stanfford Gentleman from St Augustine's being ecomted [excommunicated] by ....."

A Minister signed the register on seven occasions, John Powell between 1629 and 1634, Edmund Tracy in 1637 and 1638 and Robert Bryan in the Bishop´s Transcripts in [1695]. The Churchwardens signed below the Ministers. Thomas Barnes and Lawrence Browne in 1629, Andrew Whittington and Anthony Hodges in 1632, John Whittington and Edmund Watts in 1633 and 1634, John Baylie and Lawrence Browne in 1837 and the latter with Nicholas Tovie in 1638. In 1695 John Stoakes was the only Churchwarden.

The first use of a double christian name is in 1616 when John Richard Williams was buried. The only other occasion in the register was in 1678 when David William Nicholas was baptised.

It has been possible to find out a good deal about the Churchwarden Edmund Watts. The information is taken from the register and two other documentary sources, the Survey of Clifton (1) and an undated petition, reproduced in the Clifton and Westbury Inventories (2). In 1610 Edmund Watts married Joane the widow of Humfry Clarke the tailor and so became the stepfather of her son George Clarke with whom, by 1625, he was to hold "a messuage and divers parcells of land." (1) From Edmund´s future conduct one must wonder how satisfactory George found this sharing of property. In 1629 Joane died in childbirth and in 1634 Edmund married again. His second wife was Anne, the widow of Richard Hillinge, Tucker, who from her inventory (2) appears to have owned a dwelling house, an orchard, a garden and over fifteen acres of ground on which she had grazed 4 kine, 2 calves 2 young beasts and 26 sheep. Unfortunately three weeks and two days after her wedding to Edmund Watts Anne died. Edmund´s attitude is shown in the listing of her inventory. Anne´s house was well furnished for that time and among her effects were "much more lininge which cannot herein bee expressed in regard the said Watts keepeth away the keyes" and again "7 platters and pewter Candlesticks and such things wich cannott bee named in regard hee the said Watts hath the keyes." Three years later her eldest daughter Anne Hillinge petitioned the Bishop of Bristol because during the three weeks of her mother´s marriage to Edmund Watts he had taken all his wife´s "goods and chattles amountinge to about fourscore pownds". He had not paid anything towards Richard Hillinge´s debts nor had he kept up the mortgage payments which his wife had been paying for her four children, with the result that this mortgage was in danger of being forfeited, leaving the children "desolate." The churchwarden had already been taken before the previous Bishop of Bristol when he had promised to "deliver up the said goods, to pay the debts and to releeve the children," all within the following week. Not only had he failed to keep his promise but after the start of "a suite in Chauncery" against him he had given out that should he lose the claim then "he will get him a place in the King´s shippe or service in order to defeate and defraud your poore peticioner of her right." The register helps to end this unhappy story by recording Edmund Watt´s burial on August 1st 1637. In his inventory (1) dated 4 August 1637 there is no mention of any agricultural equipment or livestock.

(1) Upton Way, 1625 Survey of Clifton.
(2) Moore, Clifton & Westbury Inventories.

Other families mentioned in the Clifton Survey can be found in the register but none have such a dramatic documentation as Edmund Watts. Francis Peyton suffered more than anyone else through plague. During the first two plague years, 1553 and 1565 he lost two wives, four children and two servants. Two more of his servants died in the third plague year of 1575. One further plague year is recorded in 1603.

The Battens were very numerous from 1560 onwards. They were probably a farming family because in 1625 John Batten aged about 40 years and his son George aged about 12 years held a farm house west of the church and north of Clifton Street (2). The Baylies were also a large family. William Baylie, husbandman, left an inventory dated 1611/12 (1) and his son John, whose baptism is recorded in 1599, was mentioned in the survey as one of the lime burners of Clifton; he was renting a "cottage, lymekill and quarre" in Stokeleigh Slade in the year 1626; he lived in a cottage on the present Hotwells Road. (2).

The families of John Robins and John Satchfield can be traced through four generations; the latter, who was a yeoman, left an inventory (1). It was his son-in-law Anthony Hodges or Hedges whose manservant was killed in a fight in 1624. Anthony Hodges seems to have held more land than anyone else in Clifton "some of it he no doubt held of the larger manor. His descendants became lords of the Manor and Impropriators of the Church" (2). Mr Andrew Whittington and Mr John Whittington were churchwardens between 1632 and 1634 and must have been important people in the village.

In 1613 John Garlande married Agnes Barnes and this is the first mention of the Garland family, who later married into the Humberstones and whose names feature throughout all the registers and on the tombstones right up until the middle of the nineteenth century.

The first register 1538-1681 covers a period of religious wars and persecutions but none of these are reflected in its pages. The registers are missing for the period covering the Civil War, which is known to have had some impact upon the area, but even when the register is available it gives the impression that there was little information given about these events.

NOTES ON THE TRANSCRIPTION.

The original register has been badly damaged by water. It has been reproduced as faithfully as possible but some modifications have been made.

In this transcription each year's marriages, baptisms and burials have been given serial numbers, which of course were not in the original text. These numbers are used for the index of names, occupations and places at the end of the book.

The spelling of all the names is reproduced exactly as in the register but the headings - Marriages, Baptisms, Christenings and Burials - have been modernised to make the text easier to read.

An example of the formula used has been written in full for the first line of each section but, unless the format changes, the names and dates only are transcribed for all the remaining lines in the section.

Arabic numerals have replaced Roman numerals except in the first line in each section where they are used if on the original manuscript.

Until the end of 1619 all the dates were placed last in each entry but from that time onwards they were placed first. In this transcription, apart from the examples given at the beginning of each year, the dates have been placed at the end of each entry.

Square brackets have been used where parts of the text are illegible or where the word inserted is conjectural.

All additions to or explanations of the text by the editor, other than the serial numbers, are in italic script.

In the indexes page numbers are prefexed by p. All other numbers refer to the reference numbers in the text.

Dr Arthur Bancks Prowse M.D., F.R.C.S.

Arthur Prowse was born at Millbrook, near Plymouth on 27 March 1856 and died at 5 Lansdown Place, Clifton in 1925. He was the eldest son of Dr William Prowse (b. 1825) and grandson of Dr James Prowse of Bristol (1792-1846). He was educated at Amersham Grammar School, Buckinghamshire and Amersham Hall School, Caversham, Oxfordshire. His medical training began at Liverpool and was completed at St Mary's Hospital,London. He was appointed Assistant Physician at the Royal Infirmary, Bristol in 1883 and continued on the staff for many years as Physician, Dean of the Medical Faculty & Lecturer in Materia Medica, Pharmacology & Therapeutics. In 1917, as Senior Physician, he was put in charge of the 2nd Southern General Hospital.

He was Churchwarden of Clifton Parish Church for 27 years from 1888 and during this time he helped to transform the churchyard from a wilderness into the garden which is seen today, planting many rare and fine flowering shrubs and the avenue of trees which line the walk from Victoria Square to Clifton Hill. As well as being a keen amateur botanist he was also interested in archaeology. One of his achievements was to trace the lost course of the Wansdyke from Maes Knoll to the foot of Dundry Hill. His transcription of the first volume of the Clifton Parish register is another illustration of the variety of his interests. He married Margaret, youngest daughter of George Mitchell Esq. of Glasgow, their son, grandson and great grandson continued the medical tradition started by Arthur Prowse's grandfather in the early nineteenth century.

This attested copy of the Register of Clifton Church, Gloucestershire was purchased about five years since by Joseph Skelton of Oxford, amongst a parcel of old books and papers relative to Oxfordshire under the mistaken idea that it belonged to the Church of Clifton Oxon. It was only lately discovered, upon a close examination, that it belonged to the Parish of Clifton near Bristol to which this valuable record is with the greatest pleasure restored by Joseph Skelton 7 April 1828

APPENDIX A.

In order to study the Marriage Licence Bonds (1) granted for Clifton during part of the period covered by the 1538-1681 Clifton Register, some have been extracted and included as an appendix to the register. They include bonds granted during part of the period when the registers are missing.

It should be noted that although these bonds were granted it is not known if the marriages took place in Clifton.

The names of the bondsmen are not given unless they also resided in Clifton.
